Art Unit: 2881

Claim 58 is objected to because of the following informalities: "Imagined" should read --imaged-- or --irradiated--. Appropriate correction is required.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

Claims 59 and 60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Hell et al.

The Hell et al. article in Optics Letters teaches to provide beams of quenching radiation, a second type of radiation that the article calls stimulated-emission-depletion (STED) beams, on opposite sides of a beam of exciting radiation that is focused on a target material to be examined containing a fluorescent material that constitutes an excitable species so that the central maximum of the exciting beam coincides with a central minimum of the quenching radiation and the resolution of the apparatus is thereby increased. The structure disclosed in the article appears to be identical to that claimed in the instant claims, so there is no reason to assume that the central minimum of the quenching radiation is anything other than substantially zero.

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Art Unit: 2881

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 41-43, 51, 52, and 58 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 2, 3, and 8-10 of U.S. Patent No. 5,952,668. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to project the exciting radiation and the second type of radiation in patterns other than those specified in the patented claims. It is noted that the cancellation of contributions from the radiation from the two coherent but out-of-phase beams of the second type of radiation to produce an intensity of substantially zero inherently involves an interference pattern.

Claims 53-57 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 13-17 of U.S. Patent No. 5,866,911. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art that the scanning claimed in the patented claim was not required for operation of the system.

Claims 44-50 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art does not teach to produce an interference pattern of the second type of radiation in the form of a node that is substantially extended in at least one dimension, or to provide means to improve the resolution of the apparatus in a dimension parallel to the axis of the focusing means.
